

Nusa Penida – Bali’s undiscovered little Sister and the FNPF Bird Sanctuary (Friends of the National Parks Foundation)

Nusa Penida is a small beautiful unspoiled island with stunning beaches and rocky hill terrain. Steep cliffs crown the southern coast of Nusa Penida. Because Nusa Penida was not a popular Tourist destination until recently, it has remained unspoiled. The now 41 villages there all have a spiritual and social obligation to protect the Birds of the island. The crystal clear waters, vast amazing coral reefs where a variety of fish both big and small fish that change with the seasons make it a wonderful diving experience for divers. Be warned though, strong swells and currents require advanced diving skills.

Traditional Balinese village culture (farming, seaweed production, traditional lot weaving, and religious activities) has been maintained, untouched by tourism. Very few western tourists visit Nusa Penida, you won't find hotels, bars or restaurants on this island. Nusa Penida represents Bali as it was 20 years ago and is a great place to visit for families and all friends of Nature.

FNPF began its conservation and community development project in 2004. The focus on wildlife, especially the protection of Bali's emblem Bird, the Bali Starling (Leucopsar rothschildi), also known as Bali Myra, is key to the Nusa Penida FNPF's mission.

FNPF offers eco tourists a great day on Nusa Penida. There is accommodation for those who would like to stay overnight and work as a voluntary. By staying with FNPF, you will experience and be a part of conservation and community development efforts to maintain the indigenous birds and other animals of Bali, a truly wondrous and unique experience. All 100% of guests proceeds and donations is used to fund FNPF's project work, give yourself a great experience while supporting the Nusa Penida's environment and communities. Nusa Penida is only 45 minutes by Fast Boat with Caspia Bali. (please see page 53)
